ABSTRACT

This annual bibliography of Alaska- and Arctic-related publications received by the Alaska Division of State Libraries is divided into three categories. There are 26 titles in the "Juvenile Fiction" section, 122 in the "Adult Non-Fiction" section, and 19 in the "Adult Fiction" section. Government publications are generally not included, although a few Alaska state and Canadian documents of general interest are noted for special emphasis or to alert users of the guide to titles that might be of interest. Short annotations are given for each item, including publishing information, price, and a brief indication of the subject matter. An asterisk accompanies those titles that are deemed to be most worthy of consideration for first purchase by small and medium-sized public libraries and school library media centers. (MAB)

INTRODUCTION

SOME BOOKS ABOUT ALASKA is an annual annotated listing of Alaska-Arctic related publications received by the Historical Library of the Alaska Division of State Libraries and Archives. Most of the material is current or published in recent years.

The bibliography is divided into three categories: "Juvenile Fiction," "Adult Non-Fiction," and "Adult Fiction."

Government publications are generally not included. A few Alaska state (designated "Alaska State Depository Program") and Canadian documents of general interest may be noted for special emphasis or to alert users of this guide to titles which might be of interest.

For the second year, we are using the feature, "*", to designate those books which we felt were most worthy of consideration for first purchase by small and medium-sized public libraries and school library-media centers. Each library must, of course, make its own decision on whether to purchase these books, comparing each to the library's book selection policy. We hope that libraries with limited Alaskana budgets will find this helpful, selecting from these titles first. The criteria are necessarily subjective, but we have attempted to include titles of general interest and to omit those which are highly specialized. We also have not marked materials of local interest, but have noted regional publications which we felt were outstanding. Many thanks to Nancy Lesh of the University of Alaska Anchorage and Bruce Merrell and Kay Myers of Anchorage Municipal Library for their help in considering these titles.

Most titles are available through interlibrary loan, and libraries are encouraged to review these titles before purchasing them. Please check the Alaska Library Network fiche or Western Library Network either on-line or through LaserCat to find the closest library from which to request an interlibrary loan.

Publications are available from the publisher of the work or other indicated source. The Alaska State Library does not offer these for sale, so please contact the publishers or sources directly.

Also, remember that all prices are subject to change and that those listed here may no longer be accurate. In some cases, we have received the book as a gift and do not know the price.

Some Alaska materials are quite elusive, being published in limited quantity with little publicity. We would appreciate receiving information (author, title, publisher, price and source) for current, especially locally produced, titles not included here.
